MILLER SHORTAGE MATTER

Is Likely to Come Up Before the Board of Supervisors at this Session

DUPLICATE ORDER OF $300

Miller Claims That he Paid the Money Back to Ames But Failed to Take a Receipt from Him

At the present session of the board of supervisors, the committee to whom at last session was referred the matter of compelling former Supervisor "Shorty" Miller of Libertyville to turn back to the county of Lake the sum of about $300 which he is charged with having received on a duplicate county order, will be heard.

It is recalled that Miller, according to former Clerk Hendee and according to his own admission, took about $300 from the county presumably to pay for certain work which a committee had in charge of which he was a member. Supervisor Meyer had previously taken the money to pay the contractors and he paid the bill, receiving a receipt in return and he retained his check and check stub which shows his position in the matter.

The matter of Miller's connection with the affair was kept secret for many months but the auditors discovered it and the board, at the last meeting, named a committee to force a settlement from Miller. Miller at once, seeing the matter had become public, rushed into print and claimed that he knew he had duplicated on the money but that he had one day turned the money over to the county of Lake by handing the cash over to Fred Ames, as county treasurer. He said he did not ask Ames for a receipt and had nothing to show for having turned the money back to Ames. With Ames gone Miller's statements did not take very well with the board, instead of dropping the matter, named the committee in face of it and demanded that Miller "come across" and settle with the county.

The claim was made by some of the board members that Miller, in case he had turned the money back to Ames, had had enough experience to know that such a complication as duplicating of money orders would arise, and therefore naturally should have asked for a receipt. If such a receipt were produced, then the amount would merely be added to the Lake county shortage. But, no receipt is in existence and the supervisors as a whole expressed themselves at the last meeting that they saw no reason why Miller should not settle the amount just as much as anybody who might claim they had paid Ames tax money and did not ask for a receipt, but might take the stand that the county should stand the loss just on their say-so that Ames had received their money.

Various supervisors stated Tuesday that the Miller matter was booked to come up at the present session and they frowned when the suggestion was heard that the matter might slide by, by default.

Just what the committee will report is not known but it is said that they have had no agreement with Miller and they may recommend to the board that the state's attorney be instructed to start action to recover the money in question.

Good Examples of "Bulls." At an inquest a doctor once stated that "two of the deceased's injuries were fatal, but fortunately the others were not." An Irish paper goes one better and describes how a "dead man" was run down by a tram and killed. He was injured in a similar way some years ago.

OLSON AFTER SLOT MACHINES IN ILLINOIS

At Springfield last week Senator Olson of McHenry county sent in the slot machine bill, which provides for complete suppression of all such vending or gambling devices in Illinois. It fixes a penalty by a fine of from $100 to $200 or one year's imprisonment for the first offense and a $500 fine or from two to four years imprisonment for the second offense.

A RECOUNT NEXT WEEK

County Clerk Summoned to Springfield With Ballots.

The recount of the ballots in the matter of the contests for seats in the Legislature is set for next week.

Thos. F. Burns, who is contesting the election of Representative Anderson, went to Springfield Monday evening. He wishes the district counted and insist that this be done.

There will be five sub-committees of the elections numbering three, to make the count in the five contests to be considered.

County Clerk L. A. Hendee has been in daily expectancy of receiving word from Springfield to take the ballots there for the recounting.

The work of the recount will involve considerable labor, several days probably in the cases where a full count is demanded. In the Burns-Anderson case this involves all the votes cast in the three county of Boone, McHenry and Lake.

County Clerk Hendee received Saturday afternoon a subpoena from the sergeant at arms of the Illinois House of Representatives, directing him to have in Springfield by Monday morning all the ballots, poll books, tally sheets and all papers of evidence of the election Nov. 8, 1910. Mr. Hendee left Monday evening for Springfield with the ballots and other documents mentioned.

The sergeant at arms came to Waukegan Saturday and in the evening served the formal notice on Clerk Hendee ordering him to appear with the ballots hence it is evident the fight is on in earnest in Springfield.

BONDSMEN'S CASE HEARD

Judgment Was Entered in the Circuit Court Wednesday

The suit of the state against the bondsmen of the former County Treasurer, Fred Ames, in which the state sought a settlement from the bondsmen for the shortage in the county treasurer's office, was heard in the circuit court Wednesday and resulted in a judgment of $300,000 the entire amount of the bond. The damages were fixed at $27,131.94.

The judgment was given under instruction to the jury by Judge Frost and an immediate execution was ordered. The jury signed the verdict without leaving their seats.

The state placed Head Accountant Smalley of the Arthur Young & Co., auditors, and County Treasurer Carl Westerfield on the stand to testify to the amount of the shortage and Deputy County Clerk John Bullock was placed on the stand to prove the reliability of the bond.

The defense was represented by Judge D. L. Jones of Waukegan and Attorney Peter Fisher of Kenosha. They did not question the evidence and the whole matter was settled in a few minutes. The immediate execution ordered by the court gives State's Attorney Dady the authority to levy upon the bondsmen for the amount of the shortage in case they do not make it good but the general belief is that the bondsmen will not allow the matter to go to this extremity but will settle at once.

SHOTS FIRED IN ZION AS VOLIVAITES MARCH IN PARADE

Sensation Climax to Zion Troubles Came Saturday When Voliva and Independents Clash

MEN BEATEN AND PARADE NEARLY BROKEN UP

Result of Significant Banners Being Displayed in Big Parade Celebrating Voliva's Purchase of Zion Estate Cause of Much Trouble

Two guards, armed with Winchesters and instructed to shoot to kill anybody who may seek to destroy or molest in any way the huge sign which Overseer Voliva has erected near the Zion City depot were placed on duty Sunday night and are to be maintained there nights indefinitely, pending a truce between Voliva and independent factions in Zion City. Threats of personal injuries and even death in some cases as a result of the open warfare which has broken out in the city founded by Dowie, have thrown the city into a tumult never before attained during the many years strife in the North Shore town. The climax to the bitter strife between Voliva and those who have opposed him at every turn came Saturday when Voliva's parade, with him at its head, marched through the main streets to celebrate his recent victory in purchasing the Zion City estate.

Independents, anticipating his demonstrative display of strength, painted banners which they displayed along the line of march and it was the presence of these banners which caused some of Voliva's followers to break from the line and seek to destroy them, resulting in many free-for-all fights, an aftermath of which will be witnessed this week when many trials are promised after arrests of disturbers have been made.

The Independents claim that Voliva has been stating publicly that before his followers could get along peacefully, it would be necessary to kill off about 50 of the Independents. William Fabry, former city attorney, said Monday: "This encouragement of a riotous feeling on Voliva's part placed the paraders in right humor to do just what they did—break ranks and attack our people who merely carried banners expressing opposite sentiments to those Voliva displayed. Had they left us alone, we would not have disturbed them."

Capt. Walker, speaking for Voliva said: "The Independents tried to break up our parade and we just wouldn't stand for it. They took rifles and shot to pieces three whistles which we placed on a building to help celebrate our victory and our men just resented it. Some of the shots went through an American flag which hung near the whistles."

Fabry says Voliva's followers were armed with loaded canes, blackjacks, knives, etc. Voliva's people make similar claims against the Independents.

Threats of Independents to tear down the huge sign which Voliva had painted at the depot caused him to place the armed guards to watch it. The sign is 30x30 feet in size and bears these words, all being plainly seen from the Northwestern railroad: "Zion City, no tobacco, no whiskey, no beer, no theaters, no doctors, no drugs, no pork, no oysters—a clean city for a clean people." The Independents have sought to prevent prohibition of these things which are objectionable to Voliva hence their desire to remove the sign in order to prevent passersby gaining what they claim is a wrong idea of Zion City.

Capt. A. A. Walker, chief of police of Zion and Voliva's personal guard, led the procession on a sorrel charger. Voliva, wearing a gold, white and blue sash, accompanied by his cabinet and surrounded by negro guards, followed. Then came his choir, 200 men and women in full vestments. A large number of his followers came next and the baby carriage brigade brought up the rear.

The destruction of the flag and the steam whistle took place just as the parade started. The next trouble broke, when in front of his own bank, Voliva saw a sign reading: "This procession is headed by paupers and is headed for the poorhouse."

Voliva ordered it torn down. A group of his followers carried out his bidding and then threw the sign at a company of 50 or more Independents who were following the parade. It struck Fabry, and the first riot started. Fabry was knocked down, kicked and jumped on.

LEWIS C. PRICE IS INDICTED BY THE GRAND JURY

At a meeting of the grand jury Tuesday, Lewis C. Price, former county treasurer and later deputy under Ames, who it is alleged was found to be $27,000 in his accounts, was indicted, it is reported, after a number of witnesses had been examined.

At that time an effort was made to implicate Price in the shortage, but when the grand jury convened it found Ames alone guilty. Price then returned to his home at St. Paul, where he is running a delicatessen business.

When the grand jury again convened this week it was generally surmised that an attempt would be made to indict Price, as many of the witnesses in the Ames case were present, including Mrs. Fred Ames, Attorneys Orvis and Beaubine, attorneys for Ames, and several of the Ames bondsmen. They were called into the secret chambers of the grand jury one by one, and the indictment is the alleged result of their testimony.

Evidence is said to have been produced against Price before the Grand jury in the form of till books with alleged padded entries in his hand writing, a note to Ames, written in September, right after the primaries, in which Price is alleged to have said he would go insane or do something desperate if some unstated pressure were not removed, a check of a taxpayer used in alleged illegal settlement of some claim, and various books, notes, and records, a telegram and other documents, all of which are said to be appealed powerfully to the jury.

The step was generally anticipated, although at one time it was stated that it would be impossible to get Price. At the present time there seems to be a strong sentiment in favor of Price.

Along with the reported indictment of Price came another set of two indictments against Ames, on the charges of embezzlement and the withholding of public funds. At the last session of the grand jury there were two true bills returned charging Ames with the same offenses. The last session of the jury makes a total of four indictments against Ames, and he will have to answer to these indictments if he ever returns to this part of the country. It is said that all pursuit of Ames has ceased the only action now being taken is the posting of his picture in the various Pinkerton stations of the country.

Although it was the general belief that Price would return to Waukegan from St. Paul without demanding extradition or making it necessary to place him under arrest, the Waukegan authorities did not take any chances and therefore ordered his arrest as soon as the indictment was returned. A telegram was sent at once to the St. Paul authorities to place Price under arrest and await the coming of the Lake County sheriff.

KRUEGER TO BE FREED

Life Sentence of Lake County Murderer Commuted to Twenty Year Term

By a decision of the state board of pardons, rendered Tuesday, at Springfield, the sentence of George Krueger, sent to Joliet prison from this county for wife murder, the crime taking place at Lake Zurich, was commuted to twenty years. He received a life sentence.

Krueger was convicted for the slaying of his wife and mother-in-law. The crime was made to appear like a suicide and gave every evidence of it at the time ten years ago last October. In fact, Krueger told a story how his wife tried to kill him.

By the terms of the commutation to twenty years from life, Krueger will be out of Joliet some time next December. He served ten years last October, this being included in the twenty. In addition he gets eight years and nine months off for good behavior, leaving him all told eleven years and three months, or until next December to serve.

How his old friends and neighbors will take his freeing is a matter of question. C. T. Heydecker, then the state's attorney, conducted a sensational and brilliant prosecution and secured the conviction. Krueger may be paroled before next December. This, however, is a matter of doubt.

Krueger will find when he returns home that his son, whom he left a babe, is nearly a grown up man, and that his daughter is now a young matron, having been married some time right after New Year day. Strenuous efforts have been made to free him for over a year.

EVANSTONS LOSE GAME TO ALLENDALES

The Evanston Intermediate Basketball team played the Allendale team Saturday last in the afternoon. It was a hard fought contest from start to finish. The first half ending in a score 18 to 9 in favor of Allendale.

Over one hundred people gathered to witness the game and during the intermission they were favored by several selections by the Allendale band. The second half of the game then started. Both sides were somewhat refreshed, and while Evanston put on a new guard the Allendales also put on a new forward. A hard struggle ensued but the Allendales stood the strain much better than their opponents. A little rough play was indulged in toward the last but nothing serious came of it, and at the close the score stood 26 to 14 in favor of the Allendales.

After the game some time was spent in ice boating and in the evening a party was held in Belrose cottage.

The two teams are now tied and another game will be called in the near future.

NEVER SAW RAILROAD TRAIN

Lived to be Ninety-Two Years Old Without Ever Riding on Cars

LIVED 71 YEARS AT GURNEE

Yet Saw Waukegan but Once and That Was Many Years Ago When It Was Known as Little Fort

Although she had lived in Lake county just west of Gurnee 71 years, Mrs. Gabriel Odett, who passed away Wednesday afternoon at her home at the advanced age of 92 years, had never been to Waukegan and never in her life had she seen a railroad train. It is probable that there is not another person of her age in the United States who holds such a record.

Many years ago, probably more than three score, Mrs. Odett paid one visit to what was then the village of Little Fort, now called Waukegan. It was her first and last visit despite the fact that she lived but four or five miles from the city.

The most unusual fact of all, however, was that while she lived almost within a stone's throw of two large railroad systems, she had never in her life seen a railroad train. Many times she had heard the screeching of the whistles on the railroads and by climbing to any high point of ground she might have seen the train itself, but she never did so. She heard people speak of trains and she always thought of them as something wonderful that she might see, perhaps, before she died.

Mrs. Odett is described as one of the noblest women imaginable, shown by her life which was sacrificed to the care of her demented son.

Thirty-five years ago her son, then a man about 25 years old went to a country fair where he received an electric shock from a battery that caused him to lose his mind. He was sent to the insane asylum at Elgin but his mother grieved for him so much that it was necessary to take him home. For 35 years he was kept in a strong room in his mother's home where she cared for him tenderly.

He is said to be hopelessly insane and now that his mother is dead it will be necessary, probably, to send him back to the state institution.

FOX LAKE HOTEL BURNS TO GROUND

The big three story frame Schultz Hotel at Fox Lake, located right next door to the famous Illinois Hotel, burned to the ground Friday night at Fox Lake, the cause of the fire being unknown. Fred Schultz, the proprietor, and family resided in the rear of the burned structure and made an escape unharmed, rescuing most of their goods. The fire started near 3:30 Saturday. There was $6,000 insurance on the building, all told, and the loss will reach $10,000. The Ingleside fire department responded to the alarm, but could do little. The firemen worked until late at night protecting surrounding property. The Schultz Hotel was a total loss. The resort was closed for the season.

America's Big Sixteen-Inch Gun.

No battleship yet built could stand up for half an hour against the fire of the latest United States garrison artillery sixteen-inch gun. Let alone their fourteen-inch. The sixteen-inch gun, though slow in firing, can hurl a projectile weighing twenty-four hundred pounds a distance of twenty miles or more. The latest naval gun—thirteen and a half inch, which has not yet been placed aboard any ship in commission, can only throw a projectile weighing twelve hundred and fifty pounds, and the twelve-inch guns with which the Dreadnoughts are armed, a projectile weighing eight hundred and fifty pounds.—Alexander G. McLellan, in the Atlantic.

When a Man Marries

SYNOPSIS.

James Wilson or Jimmy as he is called by his friends. Jimmy was rotund and looked shorter than he really was. His ambition in life was to be taken seriously, but people steadily refused to do so, his art is considered a huge joke, except to himself. If he asked people to dinner, everyone expected a frolic. Jimmy marries Bella Knowles; they live together a year and are divorced. Jimmy's friends arrange to celebrate the first anniversary of his divorce. Those who attend the party are Miss Katherine McNair, who every one calls Kit, Mr. and Mrs. Dallas Brown, the Misses Mercer, Maxwell Reed and a Mr. Thomas Harbison, a South American civil engineer. The party is in full swing when Jimmy receives a telegram from his Aunt Selma, who will arrive in four hours to visit him and his wife. Jimmy gets his funds from Aunt Selma and after he marries he doubles his allowance. He neglects to tell her of his divorce, as she is opposed to it. Jimmy takes Kit into his confidence, he tries to devise some way so that his aunt will not learn that he has no longer a wife. He suggests that Kit play the hostess for one night, he Mrs. Wilson pro tem. Kit refuses, but is finally prevailed upon to act the part. Aunt Selma arrives and the deception works out as planned, as she had never seen Jimmy's wife. Jimmy's Jap servant is taken ill, his face is covered with spots. Bella, Jimmy's divorced wife, enters the house and asks Kit who is being taken away in the ambulance? Bella insists it is Jim. Kit tells her Jim is well and is in the house. Bella tells Kit it wasn't Jim she wanted to see, but Takahira, the Jap servant, as she wished to secure his services. Harbison steps out on the porch and discovers a man tacking a card on the door. He demands an explanation. The man points to the placard and Harbison sees the word "Smallpox" printed on it. The man tells him he is an officer of the board of health and tells him the house is under quarantine and that the guests will have to remain in the house until after the quarantine is lifted. The guests suddenly realize their predicament, the women shed tears, the men consider it a good joke.

CHAPTER VI.

A Mighty Poor Joke.

Of course, one knows that there are people who in a different grade of society would be shoplifters and pickpockets. When they are restrained by obligation or environment they become a little overkeen at bridge, or take the wrong sables, or stuff a gold-backed brush into a muff at a reception. You remember the ivory dressing set that Theodora Bucknell had, fastened with fine gold chains? And the sensation it caused at the Bucknell cotillion when Mrs. Van Zire went sweeping to her carriage with two feet of gold chain hanging from the front of her wrap?

But Anne's pearl collar was different. In the first place, instead of three or four hundred people, the suspicion had to be divided among ten. And of those ten, at least eight of us were friends, and the other two had been vouched for by the Browns and Jimmy. It was a horrible mix-up. For the necklace was gone—there couldn't be any doubt of that—and although, as Dallas said, it couldn't get out of the house, still, there were plenty of places to hide the thing.

The worst of our trouble really originated with Max Reed, after all. For it was Max who made the silly wager over the telephone, with Dick Bagley. He bet five hundred even that one of us, at least, would break quarantine within the next 24 hours, and, of course, that settled it. Dick told it around the club as a joke, and a man who owns a newspaper heard him and called up the paper. Then the paper called up the health office, after setting up a flaming scare-head, "Will Money Free Them? Board of Health versus Millionaire."

It was almost three when the house settled down—nobody had any nightclothes, although finally, through Dallas, who gave them to Anne, who gave them to the rest, we got some things of Jimmy's—and I was still dressed. The house was perfectly quiet, and after listening carefully, I went slowly down the stairs. There was a light in the hall, and another back in the dining room, and I got along without any trouble. But the pantry, where the stairs led down, was dark, and the wretched swinging door would not stay open.

I caught my skirt in the door as I went through, and I had to stop to loosen it. And in that awful minute I heard some one breathing just beside me. I had stooped to my gown, and I turned my head without straightening—I couldn't have raised myself to an erect posture, for my knees were giving way under me—and just at my feet lay the still glowing end of a match!

I had to swallow twice before I could speak. Then I said sharply:

"Who's there?"

The man was so close it is a wonder I had not walked into him; his voice was right at my ear.

"I am sorry I startled you," he said quietly. "I was afraid to speak suddenly, or move, for fear I would do what I have done."

It was Mr. Harbison.

"I thought you were—it is very late," I managed to say, with dry lips. "Do you know where the electric switch is?"

"Mrs. Wilson!" It was clear he had not known me before. "Why, no; don't you?"

"I am all confused," I muttered, and beat a retreat into the dining room. There, in the friendly light, we could at least see each other, and I think he was as much impressed by the fact that I had not undressed as I was by the fact that he had, partly. He wore a hideous dressing gown of Jimmy's, much too small, and his hair, parted and plastered down in the early evening, stood up in a sort of brown brush all over his head. He was trying to flatten it with his hands.

"It must be three o'clock," he said, with polite surprise, and the house is like a barn. You ought not to be running around with your arms uncovered, Mrs. Wilson. Surely you could have called some of us."

"I didn't wish to disturb any one," I said, with distinct truth.

"I suppose you are like me," he said. "The novelty of the situation—and everything. I got to thinking things over, and then I realized the studio was getting cold, so I thought I would come down and take a look at the furnace. I didn't suppose any one else would think of it. But I lost myself in that pantry, stumbled against a half-open drawer, and nearly went down the dumb-waiter." And, as if in judgment on me, at that instant came two rather terrific thumps from somewhere below, and inarticulate words, shouted rather than spoken. It was uncanny, of course, coming as it did through the register at our feet. Mr. Harbison looked startled.

"Oh, by the way," I said as carelessly as I could. "In the excitement, I forgot to mention it. There is a policeman asleep in the furnace room. I—I suppose we will have to keep him now," I finished as airily as possible.

"Oh, a policeman—in the cellar," he repeated, staring at me, and he moved toward the pantry door.

"You needn't go down," I said feverishly, with visions of Bella Knowles sitting on the kitchen table, surrounded by soiled dishes and all the cheerless aftermath of a dinner party. "Please don't go down—I—it's one of my rules—never to let a stranger go down to the kitchen. I—I'm peculiar—that way—and besides, it's—it's mussy."

Bang! Crash! through the register pipe, and some language quite articulate. Then silence.

"Look here, Mrs. Wilson," he said resolutely. "What do I care about the kitchen? I'm going down and arrest that policeman for disturbing the peace. He will have the pipes down."

At That Instant Came Two Rather Terrific Thumps.

"You must not go," I said, with desperate firmness. "He—he is probably in a very dangerous state just now. We—I—locked him in."

The Harbison man grinned and then became serious.

"Why don't you tell me the whole thing?" he demanded. "You've been in trouble all evening, and—you can trust me, you know, because I am a stranger! because the minute this crazy quarantine is raised I am off to the Argentine Republic," (perhaps he said Chili) "and because I don't know anything at all about you. You see, I have to believe what you tell me, having no personal knowledge of any of you to go on. Now tell me—whom have you hidden in the cellar, besides the policeman?"

There was no use trying to deceive him: He was looking straight into my eyes. So I decided to make the best of a bad thing. Anyhow, it was going to require strength to get Bella through the coal hole with one arm and restrain the policeman with the other.

"Come," I said, making a sudden resolution, and led the way down the stairs.

He said nothing when he saw Bella, for which I was grateful. She was sitting at the table, with her arms in front of her, and her head buried in them. And then I saw she was asleep. Her hat and veil laid beside her, and she had taken off her coat and draped it around her. She had rummaged out a cold pheasant and some salad, and had evidently had a little supper. Supper and a nap, while I worried myself gray-headed about her!

"She—she came in unexpectedly—something about the butler," I explained under my breath. "And—she doesn't want to stay. She is on bad terms with—with some of the people upstairs. You can see how impossible the situation is."

"I doubt if we can get her out," he said, as if the situation were quite ordinary. "However, we can try. She seems very comfortable. It's a pity to rouse her."

Here the prisoner in the furnace room broke out afresh. It sounded as though he had taken a lump of coal and was attacking the lock. Mr. Har-bison followed the noise, and I could hear him arguing, not gently.

"Another sound," he finished, "and you won't get out of here at all, unless you crawl up the furnace pipe!"

When he came back, Bella was rousing. She lifted her head with her eyes shut and then opened them one at a time, blinked, and sat up. She didn't see him at first.

"You wretch!" she said ungratefully, after she had yawned. "Do you know what time it is? And that—?" Then she saw Mr. Harbison and sat staring at him.

"This is Mr. Harbison," I said to her hastily. "He—he came with Anne and Dal—and—he is shut in, too."

By that time Bella had seen how handsome he was, and she took a hair-pin out of her mouth, and arched her eyebrows, which was always Bella's best pose.

"I am Miss Knowles," she said sweetly (of course, the court had given her back her name), "and I stopped in tonight, thinking the house was empty, to see about a—b—b—b—b. Unfortunately, the house was quarantined just at that time, and—here I am. Surely there cannot be any harm in helping me to get out?" (Pleading tone.) "I have not been exposed to any contagion, and in the exhausted state of my health the confinement would be positively dangerous."

She rolled her eyes at him, and I could see she was making an impression. Of course she was free. She had a perfect right to marry again, but I will say this: Bella is a lot better looking by electric light than she is the next morning.

The upshot of it was that the gentleman who built bridges and looked down on society from a lofty, lonely pinnacle agreed to help one of the most gleaming members of the aforesaid society to outwit the law.

It took about 15 minutes to quiet the policeman. Nobody ever knew what Mr. Harbison did to him, but for 24 hours he was quite tractable. He changed after that, but that comes later in the story. Anyhow, the Harbison man went upstairs and came down with a Bagdad curtain and a cushion to match, and took them into the furnace room, and came out and locked the door behind him, and then we were ready for Bella's escape.

But there were four special officers and three reporters watching the house as a result of Max Reed's idocy. Once, after trying all the other windows and finding them guarded, we discovered a little bit of a hole in an out-of-the-way corner that looked like a ventilator and was covered with a heavy wire screen. No prisoners ever dug their way out of a dungeon with more energy than that with which we attacked that screen, hacking at it with kitchen knives, whispering like conspirators, being scratched with the ragged edges of the wire, frozen with the cold air one minute and boiling with excitement the next. And when the wire was cut, and Bella had rolled her coat up and thrust it through, and was standing on a chair ready to follow, something outside that had looked like a barrel moved and said, "Oh, I wouldn't do that if I were you. It would be certain to be undignified, and probably it would be unpleasant—later."

We coaxed and pleaded and tried to bribe, and that happened, as it turned out, to be one of the worst things that we had to endure. For the whole conversation came out the next afternoon in the paper, with the most awful drawings, and the reporter said it was the flashing of the jewels we wore that first attracted his attention. And that brings me back to the robbery.

For when we had crept back to the kitchen, and Bella was fumbling for her handkerchief to cry into and the Harbison man was trying to apologize for the language he had used to the reporter, and I was on the verge of a nervous chill—well, it was then that Bella forgot all about crying and jumped and held out her arm.

"My diamond bracelet!" she screamed. "Look, I've lost it!"

Well, we went over every inch of that basement, until I knew every crack in the flooring, every spot on the cement. And Bella was nasty, and said that she had never seen that part of the house in such condition, and that if I had acted like a sane person and put her out, when she had no business there at all, she would have had her freedom and her bracelet, and that if we were playing a joke on her (as if we felt like joking!) we would please give her the bracelet and let her go and die in a corner; she felt very queer.

"This young man who wants to marry you, Clara—what do you know about him?"

"I'll be frank with you, papa, I know little or nothing. I met him at the seaside in June and from the very first I felt that I could love him."

"But you are taking great chances, my dear. He may be an adventurer. Isn't there any special thing that commands him—in addition to his regard for you?"

"Yes, papa. He told me that he intended to model his business career on your own ambitious rise and remarkable success."

"Hum. Send him to my office to-morrow, my dear."

Too Calculating.

"Aren't you going to marry Miss Pertle?"

"Not me; she's too up-to-date for me!"

"How is she so up-to-date?"

"I telephoned her last week that I would be up the following night to propose, and she went and sold the moving picture rights of my proposal to the highest bidder."

NATIONAL CAPITAL AFFAIRS

Oratory in the House Comes High

WASHINGTON.—The craze for statistics has invaded the most sacred of precincts. It has attacked, assaulted, indented and convinced the most parous of statisticians themselves—the members of congress.

Proof, by statistics furnished right on the floor of the house, that the speeches there cost more than the total amounts of many of the items under discussion has left the entire aggregation in chronic terror that, when their most flowery orations are being speeded on their way to the morgue of the Congressional Record, some treacherous antagonist may arise, reverse his cuffs and read off evidence that the honorable gentleman's silence would be golden.

Like the famous discovery of dry farming in the west, because of the hoofprint of a mule, the economy of words in congress was precipitated by horseshoes.

The state department had an item of $237.66 for horseshoeing. Missouri representatives declared they were from the "show me state." The secretary of state couldn't show the shoes, which had been worn out. There was a quarter of an hour of oratory when up rose a representative from Pennsylvania. "Gentlemen," he said, "it costs $10,000 an hour to run this house, and we have already spent $2,500 worth of words trying to skin a $237 item. Let's quit."

The total of the year's appropriation for the upkeep of the house was $4,567,824.10. Actual working days number 90, and the average time of a day's work is five hours. The normal 2,160 hours in 90 days would make the house expense run into $2,114.73 per hour, on a 24-hour basis. But allowing only five hours of honest work per day, the expense amounts to $10,573.65 per hour.

The salary roll of the members amounts to $2,989,050. Their mileage is $154,000. The clerks cost $598,500 for those who are credited to members, and $133,800 for clerks of committees. There are a number of minor items, among them the salary of $1,200 that goes to the chaplain who prays for congress's wisdom. He is about the poorest paid of all, considering the size of his job.

Mine Rescue Squads Reduce Deaths

DEATHS of coal miners in explosions last year were reduced 25 per cent. by the rescue system inaugurated by the federal government.

For many years this rescue work was left to the different states and was but indifferently done. As the death rate grew about ten per cent. annually, the federal government decided it was time to take charge of this work itself.

Six rescue stations have been established. One of these is at Trinidad, Colo.; another at Rock Springs, Wyo., and others in various parts of the coal producing country.

These stations are old Pullman sleeping cars, in which four men spend all their time, night and day, never going further than a few minutes' walk from the car. In charge of the party is a mining engineer. The others are a practical miner, a hospital attendant capable of giving first aid to the injured and a cook. The car is equipped with rescue apparatus ready for immediate use and there are sleeping apartments for the men.

When news comes of a mine disaster an engine is attached to the car and it is rushed to the scene of the disaster.

Upon arrival, the mining engineer in charge of the government rescue squad and apparatus takes charge of the mine and from the general manager down to the mule driver, all obey his orders and do it on the jump. He organizes rescue parties, equipping each man with an oxygen helmet enabling him to withstand any kind of poisonous gases for two hours. Then, with his helmeted squad behind him, the mining engineer enters the mine and begins a search for dead and dying miners.

The rescue parties carry pulmotors, with which to revive dying miners with oxygen. Fifteen lives are said to have been saved last year by use of this device.

In West Virginia last year there was a mine owner who had no faith in the pulmotors. He insisted on going into the mine with the rescuing party and did not wear a helmet. He was found unconscious from the effect of noxious gases, but by the application of the pulmotor was revived and taken out alive. He immediately ordered a consignment of the little oxygen pumps and had his men instructed in their use.

Dog in Arms Rouses a Congressman

THE idle rich woman, who fondles her poodle dog, leaving the care of her children to servants, has been delivered a stinging slap by a western representative. He has nothing to say against the poodle, but his mistress he believes to be un-American. The American home is being undermined by this kind of woman, he thinks. She constitutes a grave national problem which should be speedily solved.

"Poodle dogs are usurpers, and should be returned to their proper place in the home," said he.

"While I was passing in front of a residence that cost hundreds of thousands of dollars, an elaborately dressed woman came out," he said. "She carried in her arms a costly poodle dog, and as she stepped into her carriage, two of her servants, wearing high silk hats, bowed almost to their knees. One assisted her to enter the carriage while the other draped her dress about her feet. A moment later a negro servant came out wheeling a baby carriage, and I crossed the street to find out that the baby carriage held the woman's little son. The thought of the woman holding the poodle dog, where the child should have been, while she gave the animal its morning outing, seemed inhuman to me, when I thought of the child being taken out by the servant.

"But, finally, I decided that the poodle was more to be pitied than the child. It was in worse company. But the sad part about the whole incident was that a mother could go smilingly away from her baby boy, while she cuddled and patted the insignificant little dog as her side. Poodles are all right as pets for children, and, incidentally, for older people. But before they are allowed to take the places of children in our homes, I would rather see every poodle in the nation drawn and quartered."

"The only kind of a home which is worth while is the home where the mother gives her first and best thought to her children. Too often in America today rich women care nothing for their offspring, but would rather bestow their foolish affection on pets that really amount to nothing."

Protest Made at Hatien Bank Move

ANOTHER financial situation in Latin-America which is seriously engaging the attention of the state department, with a view to protecting American interests, is the confused monetary condition of Haiti.

It is proposed by Haiti to substitute for the Hatien National bank, a French corporation which controls the financial dealings of the country, a similar banking concession to be granted to a group of German, French and American bankers, the German interests predominating.

Some time ago the United States protested against the proposed arrangement on the ground that American interests were not properly protected. Since then the Haitian government has made some modifications in its original plan, but the changes have not been sufficient, in the opinion of the state department, to warrant the withdrawal of the American protest.

In connection with the national bank concession Haiti is trying to float a loan to fund its interior debt. The course which will be adopted in regard to Hatien bonds in this relation is of interest to the United States government because many American creditors of Haiti have been paid in bonds of that government. So if such bonds are scaled down the people who received them on the basis of their former value, in the opinion of the state department, will have grounds for a claim in equity.

The possibility of American bankers participating in the loan also causes the state department to believe that it is the moral duty of this government to scrutinize closely the transaction to see that no contract is entered into which cannot be backed up by the United States in case at some future time Haiti fails to fulfill her obligations.

FEARED THE SCREECH OWL

Woman Was Not Superstitious, but She Cut Short Her Visit to the Country.

"I'm not a bit superstitious, not in the least bit, but—I don't ever want to hear another screech owl in the night," said a woman who remained in the country until the holidays. "Positively, I believe I should go mad if I ever heard that blood-curdling sound again."

"You know they say in the country that if a screech owl comes crying around the house it's a sure sign of death. Of course, I've no faith in that sort of nonsense, but all the same, the coachman's mother died after the owl's first appearance."

"The owl came back and one of the employees died. It came back again, and I decided that, after all, I didn't want to spend Christmas in the country, and I lighted back to town. The coachman said something about 'the old rule,' and I just naturally packed up my duds and bought a ticket for New York."

"Ugh-h-h! I shiver now whenever I think of that owl in the apple tree."

Give a Woman a Chance.

Compulsory military service for men, urges a German female advocate of woman's rights, should be offset by compulsory domestic service for women. On the theory that life in barracks and drill in the manual of arms have benefited German manhood, she asks, why will not life in the kitchen and exercise in the use of pots and pans similarly raise German womanhood?

If Germany ever organizes a standing army of cooks it may force all Europe to follow its lead. Culinary conscription is a severe measure, but when enforced in Germany other nations might be expected to adopt it. There would be more reason in doing so than in following Germany's lead in militarism. There is more real need of cooks the world over than of soldiers. It is possible to get along without fighting, but not without eating.

Consumption Spreads in Syria.

Consumptives in Syria are treated today much in the same way as the lepers have been for the last 2,000 years. Tuberculosis is a comparatively recent disease among the Arabs and Syrians, but so rapidly has it spread that the natives are in great fear of it. Consequently when a member of a family is known to have the disease, he is frequently cast out and compelled to die of exposure and want. A small hospital for consumptives has been opened at Beyrout under the direction of Dr. Mary P. Eddy.

BAD TEETH VS. GOOD HEALTH

By J. J. McCarty, M.D.
COPYRIGHT BY PEARSON PUBL. CO.

THERE are in this country eight factories devoted to the manufacture of artificial teeth. Last year the manufacturers sold over 60,000,000 of these teeth and this year they expect to sell between 78,000,000 and 80,000,000; and every one of these teeth goes to replace a natural tooth which, if given proper care and attention, should last out one's lifetime. Unclean mouths and teeth are responsible for these conditions, for it is a fact fully established that less than eight per cent. of the American people use a toothbrush or make any effort to keep their teeth and mouths clean. In order to have good health we must have sound teeth, yet we are permitting our teeth to decay at a pace that is alarming, which, if unchecked, will lead to a nation of broken-down, dyspeptic men and women.

The first of the permanent teeth, the first molar, usually appears about the sixth year and for that reason has been designated as the "sixth year's molar." These molars are by far the most important of the permanent teeth, performing the duties of grinders of all foods that enter the mouth. From the seventh to the eighth year the incisors appear and perform the functions of dividing the food. The bicuspid teeth begin to make their appearance between the ninth and tenth year and the canine from the ninth to the fourteenth year. Around the twelfth year the second set of permanent molars appears, followed by the third or wisdom teeth, whose appearance varies from the seventeenth to the twenty-fifth years. These teeth, assisted by the muscles of mastication which control the movements of the jaws, perform the important function of preparing our food for proper assimilation by means of the saliva of the mouth, which contains a ferment called ptyalin, that has the property of changing carbohydrate foods, such as vegetables and cereals, into starch. By a thorough mastication with this ferment the food is prepared so that when it reaches the gastric juices of the stomach digestion can be more readily advanced, and certain portions given off to supply the daily needs of our marvelous system with proper nutrition.

During the days when baby is wrestling with its first teeth the young mother seeks aid in such contrivances as rubber rings and pacifiers, permitting the little one to chew them ad libitum, believing that they promote nature's efforts and assist the child during the dentition period. Her good neighbors have told her all about these adjuncts to teeth cutting and the wonderful results that they have obtained through their use. The mother does not realize that all these contrivances are dangerous to the health and well-being of her child, often being the means of introducing some serious contagious or infectious disease of a most dangerous character. It has been found that rubber rings or pacifiers are bacteria carriers, being loaded with germs of a most virulent type. Even if cleaned and sterilized, there is another reason why they should never be used. They deform the mouth. The dental tissues of the infant are soft and yielding and the use of rings and pacifiers often distorts the mouth and gums, frequently resulting in what is known as mal-occlusion of the teeth, a condition where the upper and lower sets do not properly meet.

The sixth year molar is the most important of all teeth. It is often lost because parents frequently think that it is one of the temporary set. This error is due to the fact that it is cut while most of the first set of teeth are in the mouth. When this tooth is lost nature makes an attempt to close the space, with the result that the entire articulation is destroyed. The space thus created between the teeth is difficult to keep clean, due to the food particles being forced into these spaces. Its loss is also one of the chief causes of irregularities of the other erupting teeth. It is the belief of the entire dental profession that the early loss of this tooth is responsible for more misplaced teeth and ill-shaped jaws than any other condition of the mouth.

Every mother should become familiar with the location of this important tooth. Beginning at the center in front and counting backward on either side, above and below, it is the sixth tooth cut. The mother should carefully watch for any defects found in this tooth, and if cavities are located they should be repaired at once in order that the usefulness of the tooth can be saved.

The great American habit, the "bolting of food," is one of the most serious conditions of our modern life. Dr. Osler has said that the American nation could be divided into two classes, bolters and chowers, with the bolters leading by a large majority. Dr. H. C. Sexton of Shelbyville, Ind., at a meeting of the Indiana Dental association, delivered an interesting address in which he deplored this habit, and advised that a national movement should be organized to be known as the "chewing movement." He said: "The education of the average man, woman and child has been sadly neglected. They have not been taught to use their teeth. When we bolt our food we ignore one of the most important ferments, ptyalin, in our saliva, that has much to do in the process of digestion. But the American habit is to spit, and Americans are the greatest spitters of the world. Between meals they will spit out the invaluable saliva, then when they eat they wash down every unchewed bolus of food with copious draughts of water, coffee, or in summer iced tea. What a foolish, disgusting habit it is and more than foolish, more than disgusting, it is killing in its hurtfulness."

It has been stated that fully 75 per cent. of the people of this country bolt their food. This habit is usually acquired during the early years of childhood and carried on during one's whole life.

It should be the duty of all parents to make their children eat slowly and chew their food properly. Nature has placed these teeth in our mouth for a purpose, a very valuable purpose, too, and if we neglect to properly use them we are inviting conditions that seriously threaten our health and general welfare.

Diseases of the nose and mouth have a great influence upon the dental arch of the mouth, particularly adenoid growths in the nose. If the nose is filled up with these adenoids the free passage of air along the nasal membranes becomes obstructed and results in the child becoming what is known as a "mouth breather." In this change from the normal physiological nasal breathing the dental arch is deformed and irregular teeth is the result. Many of these cases are deplorable, for it not only impairs the ability of the individual to masticate food properly, but it interferes with the voice and changes the whole facial appearance of the person. Another deplorable condition due to these nasal growths is the effect they may have on the mentality of the child. They become stupid, forgetful, inattentive and lack the power of mental concentration. This is caused by these growths obstructing the lymphatic circulation of the brain, preventing the proper supply of nutrition so essential to its development. These adenoid growths not only affect the dental arch of the mouth, but they are the frequent causes of deafness in children. Dr. W. A. Mills of Baltimore, discussing this subject at a recent meeting of Washington dentists, said, "one-half our idiots and insane in our institutions today are so as the result of deformed dental arches due to adenoids in the nose."

Is insanity in many cases due to defective teeth? That is a question that has aroused much interest in the profession due to an interesting series of experiments made by Dr. Henry S. Upson, professor of neurology in the Western Reserve Medical school, Cleveland, Ohio. He found among the insane in the asylums of Cleveland and Columbus many cases of dementia precox and melancholia, these patients all showing dental impaction of the teeth. Taking nine of these unfortunate creatures, Dr. Upson had them operated on dentally and the results obtained were sensational in the extreme. Six of these have fully recovered, two much improved and one showed no mental change at all.

The common cause of all our dental troubles is decay of the teeth, known technically as dental caries. It is a disease known to have existed for centuries. In the British museum is a skull of a mummy dated 2800 B. C., showing evidences of well-marked caries. Dr. L. M. Vaughn of Buffalo, quoting from Guerini's "History of Dentistry," calls attention to a collection of Egyptian writings dating back to 1550 B. C., in which are mentioned a number of remedies for this disease. Decay or caries of the teeth is largely due to neglect or failure to keep the mouth and particularly the teeth properly cleaned. If food particles lodge between the teeth and are not removed they eventually ferment. During this fermentation process the mouth bacteria acting on the carbohydrate foodstuffs produce acid fermentation. These acids dissolve the lime salts of the teeth, exposing the dentine to the action of microbes which rapidly destroy the tooth structure. It is the general supposition that teeth always decay from the outside; as a matter of fact the change takes place from within outward and goes on rapidly until there is quite a large cavity. Frequently toothache or extreme sensitiveness to hot or cold food or drink are the first intimations that decay has taken place. Sometimes there is no pain at all and a chance examination discloses the cavity in the tooth.

These tooth cavities are ideal incubators for all kinds of bacteria. Many of the pathogenic bacteria require heat and moisture for their development and the unclean mouth and teeth offer all these conditions. It is not uncommon to find the pus-producing organisms, the bacillus of diphtheria and tuberculosis, in these tooth cavities.

The cases of unclean mouths are legion; not only among children, but among adults. It is estimated that only eight per cent. of the people in this country take care of their teeth.

In a recent paper read before the Society of Medical Inspectors of New York, and commenting on the condition of children's teeth, Dr. Merrill said: "It may be said without fear of contradiction that if the teeth of the coming generation are to be saved it must be done during their school life. In the city of New York there are in this year of 1910 over 600,000 school children, a very large percentage of whom are in need of dental treatment. Few of them ever make use of a tooth brush; their mouths are filthy beyond belief, and most of them have one or more decayed teeth."

Dr. William H. Potter of Boston, at the solicitation of the school board of Brookline, Mass., recently examined the mouths of the school children in that exclusive suburb of Boston and found that 53 per cent. of the children had diseased and defective mouths and teeth.

The school inspectors of Cleveland, Ohio, examined 33,000 children last year and discovered 77 per cent. of them to have defective teeth. It has been estimated that there are over 9,000,000 children in the United States who have defective and diseased teeth and 5,000,000 with enlarged glands and 7,000,000 with defective breathing, due to adenoid growths in the nose.

Dental caries frequently originates during pregnancy and should receive immediate attention. There is an old and true saying, "a tooth for every child," but this can be avoided if the prospective mother will follow the instructions of her physician and her dentist.

EFFECT OF SUCKING FINGERS WHEN A BABY, AND ITS CURE EFFECT OF BREATHING THROUGH THE MOUTH, AND THE CURE

THE MOTHER DOES NOT REALIZE THAT THESE CONTRIVANCES ARE DANGEROUS TO THE HEALTH OF HER CHILD

The teeth should never be neglected. It is as essential to keep them clean as it is necessary for us to eat. They should be thoroughly brushed with a medium bristle brush three times a day. Most people brush them in a very perfunctory sort of way, applying the brush horizontally. This does not remove the small particles of food between the teeth and fermentation and decay results. The proper way is to first rinse the mouth with water that has been slightly warmed. This washes away many of the food particles that adhere to the teeth. Next use the brush without any powder or paste to dislodge any food that may still remain on the teeth; then apply your powder or paste by means of the tooth brush and thoroughly use it along the teeth with the cross motion usually applied with the brush to the teeth. You must also brush upward and downward, inward and outward, then backward and forward. In this way all foreign substances are removed. In order to be sure that no particles remain even after this treatment, it is necessary to pass silk dental floss between the teeth. Very frequently if the floss becomes ragged or breaks, it is a guide to some defect existing in the tooth surfaces. In selecting a tooth paste or powder be sure to secure a product free from acid or grit.

In order to obtain a clean mouth and have good teeth and health it is necessary that you should have your dentist look over your teeth at least twice a year. You are not able to locate small cavities with your hand mirror and your dentist has every appliance for doing so. Do not think that because a tooth has decayed it cannot be saved; the roots of teeth do not decay, and the dentist, with the aid of fillings and crowns, can repair these structures and give you much comfort. Missing teeth greatly impair the proper chewing of food. It is here that the dentist can be of important service to you.

Many mothers think that it is useless to take care of baby's temporary teeth, but this is a grievous error. Their permanent teeth have begun formation up in the gums during the temporary period and are ready to make their appearance at the proper physiological time. If care is taken with the temporary set, the permanent ones will appear with some regularity and be formed to produce correct occlusion. Mothers should clean the baby's teeth every day with a weak solution of boracic acid; a soft cloth dipped in this solution should be gently drawn across the teeth and gums at least twice a day. When a child reaches the age of 2½ years it should be examined by the dentist. This is done to insure that the teeth and gums are in good condition.

HEAD SOLID MASS OF HUMOR

"I think the Cuticura Remedies are the best remedies for eczema I have ever heard of. My mother had a child who had a rash on its head when it was real young. Doctor called it baby rash. He gave us medicine, but it did no good. In a few days the head was a solid mass; a running sore. It was awful, the child cried continually. We had to hold him and watch him to keep him from scratching the sore. His suffering was dreadful. At last we remembered Cuticura Remedies. We got a dollar bottle of Cuticura Resolvent, a box of Cuticura Ointment, and a bar of Cuticura Soap. We gave the Resolvent as directed, washed the head with the Cuticura Soap, and applied the Cuticura Ointment. We had not used half before the child's head was clear and free from eczema, and it has never come back again. His head was healthy and he had a beautiful head of hair. I think the Cuticura Ointment very good for the hair. It makes the hair grow and prevents falling hair." (Signed) Mrs. Francis Lund, Plain City, Utah, Sept. 19, 1910. Send to the Potter Drug & Chem. Reason Enough.

A negro near Xenia, O., had been arrested for chicken stealing. He had stolen so many that his crime had become grand larceny.

He was tried and convicted, and brought in for sentence.

"Have you any reason to offer why the judgment of the court should not be passed upon you?" he was asked.

"Well, judge," he replied, "I can't go to jail now nohow. I'm buildin' a shack out yonder, an' I jus' can't go till I git it done. You kin sholy see dat."—Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post.

Work and Marriage.

In the New York courts recently a girl, aged 17, on being told by her mother that she was old enough to go to work, replied: "Work, I will not; I prefer to marry." Whereupon she was married before night to a young man earning $8 per week. This is of a piece with the reasoning of another girl who, being interrogated by a friend, "Where are you working now, Mamie?" answered promptly, "I ain't working; I'm married."—Boston Herald.

Fighting Tuberculosis in Hungary.

The anti-tuberculosis movement was started in 1894, and in 1898 there were five institutions for the treatment of consumption. Today the campaign is encouraged and financed by the government, and over 200 different agencies are engaged in the fight. A permanent tuberculosis museum has been established at Budapest and a carefully conducted campaign of education is being carried on.

HONEST CONFESION.

A Doctor's Talk on Food.

There are no fairer set of men on earth than the doctors, and when they find they have been in error they are usually apt to make honest and manly admission of the fact.

A case in point is that of a practitioner, one of the good old school, who lives in Texas. His plain, unvarnished tale needs no dressing up:

"I had always had an intense prejudice, which I can now see was unwarrantable and unreasonable, against all much advertised foods. Hence, I never read a line of the many 'ads' of Grape-Nuts, nor tested the food till last winter.

"While in Corpus Christi for my health, and visiting my youngest son, who has four of the rudest, healthiest little boys I ever saw, I ate my first dish of Grape-Nuts food for supper with my little grandsons.

"I became exceedingly fond of it and have eaten a package of it every week since, and find it a delicious, refreshing and strengthening food, leaving no ill effects whatever, causing no eruptions (with which I was formerly much troubled), no sense of fullness, nausea, nor distress of stomach in any way.

"There is no other food that agrees with me so well, or sits as lightly or pleasantly upon my stomach as this does.

"I am stronger and more active since I began the use of Grape-Nuts than I have been for 10 years, and am no longer troubled with nausea and indigestion." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Same Feet.

In a local shoe store one day this week a stout man appeared to be having considerable difficulty in finding just what he wanted. After showing him a dozen or more pairs the salesman blandly observed: "Now, here is a pair that I think will suit you to perfection." After examining the shoes the stout man exclaimed: "I don't like them. They are too narrow and too pointed." "Ah," returned the clerk, "but they are wearing narrow, pointed shoes this season." "Possibly," returned the stout man, "but I am wearing my last season's feet."—Youngstown Telegram.

Has Millions of Friends

How would you like to number your friends by millions as Bucklen's Arnica Salve does? Its astounding cures in the past forty years made them. Its best salve in the world for sores, ulcers, eczema, burns, boils, scalds, cuts, corns, sore eyes, sprains, swellings, bruises, cold sores. Has no equal for piles. 25c at J. H. Swan's.

A King's Costume.

It is a proof of the fact that ideas are stronger in men's minds than they used to be that King George can wear a bowler hat and a loud suit without being dejected; he would only embarrass us were he to appear in the regal garments of the kings of an earlier age. And what in the name of wonder should we think of him if he wore a waistcoat formed of an embroidered royal standard? Yet such things were once as natural as a Norfolk jacket.—London Truth.

Housing of Working Girls.

The housing of working girls is a problem that is being much discussed in England, and several books have been written on the subject within the last month. The hotel, or, as they call it in England, "hostel," that shall be under inspection and carried on in a business like way, has been suggested, while others would have the home idea predominate and think this comes best from private effort. As the great army of tramps has its counterpart in the women who are submerged in a great city like London it would seem that innocent girls can be better protected where there is some sort of public supervision. The promiscuous lodging house is certainly a great menace in any country to the young girl coming from the country to work in the city.

Primitive Bookkeeping.
There is an old merchant in a thriving little town near Minneapolis who keeps a paper ledger, and insists on keeping a pine board account with his customers. "He places this board off every five months and starts a new account. The other day a man came into the old merchant's store to pay a balance of 40 cents. 'I guess you don't owe me anything,' replied the old trader to a question about the debt. The customer protested that he did owe the debt; in fact, he remembered buying the goods some six months ago. 'Oh, well, five months alters the case,' said the weigher of sugar and coffee. 'You may owe me 40 cents, for all I know. You see I've up and started a new board since you got your goods, and I don't remember your debt. You may pay me if you want to, but, if you don't, it's all O. K., as I've shaved your account out.' The trader got his 40 cents."

Overworked. "My husband," said Mrs. Jenner Lee Onadego, "went on a strike the other day."

"Why, I didn't know he worked at any regular job," said Mrs. Selldom-Holme.

"Oh, yes; he winds the clock once a week and always has done it on Monday morning, but last Monday he kicked. He says it's an eight-day clock, and, by George, he's going to let the blamed thing run eight days hereafter without touching it! Saves him six windings in a year. You'd think, to hear him rant about it, that he's the first man who ever found that 'out. Some men are so peculiar."

"No," said Mrs. Selldom-Holme; "they're all alike. My husband feeds the chickens on the same plan."

Good Clothes and Good Morals. It is doubtful whether any one to whom soap and water and more or less tidy clothes are a matter of course can rightly estimate the extent to which this question of clothes and cleanliness bears upon the criminality of youths. Dirty, ragged garments, greasy caps and neck-scarfs worn day after day without the possibility of a change are, I believe, responsible for much. Certain it is that the lad who is content with but one set of raiment invariably belongs to a very low stratum of society, and the absence of a desire for a Sunday suit and the unabashed wearing of the week-day suit on the Sunday is very frequently indicative of the mark of one largely impervious to outside influences.—From C. E. B. Russell's "Young Gaoi Birds."

HIS $50 WERE NOT LOST

Though the Old Vest Went to the Ragman, Wife Appeared in a Fine New Hat.

A certain thrifty Sewickleyan, who contrives to "hold out" a little for sundry personal purposes despite the alertness of his better half, is often put to queer shifts to keep his private bank roll from her prying eyes. When he some time ago began a systematic conservation of his resources, with an eye to attractive odds in the baseball betting on the pennant, he bethought himself of an old vest that he had seen hanging in a dark part of the cellar, which he wore when he was making garden in the spring. The vest would make an excellent depository, so he thought.

Deciding on Tuesday morning to come up to the city and "look 'em over," he repaired to the cellar. Horror! The vest was gone. Search as he might it was nowhere to be found, and with a fallen heart he resorted to the last desperate expedient and sought his wife.

"Why, yes," she replied with a frown on her pretty face, "it smelled of mold and paint, so I just had to get rid of it, and I sold it to the ragman."

She watched him sink limply into a chair with a groan that shook the china in the china closet. "But don't worry, pet, the $50 you so carelessly left in the vest is not lost, but is safely invested in this beautiful fall hat. Isn't it a beauty, dear?"

And as she produced one of the latest bucket-shaped monstrosities as big as a water pail, he pulled a long breath and fell into a faint on the dining room floor.—Pittsburg Gazette-Times.

A Fierce Night Alarm is the hoarse, startling cough of a child, suddenly attacked by croup. Often it aroused Lewis Chamblin, of Manchester, O., [R. R. No. 2] for their four children were greatly subject to croup.

"Sometimes in severe attacks," he wrote, "we were afraid they would die, but since we proved what a certain remedy Dr. King's New Discovery is, we have no fear. We rely on it for croup and for coughs, colds or any throat or lung trouble." So do thousands of others. So may you. Asthma, hay fever, lagrippe, whooping cough, hemorrhages fly before it. 50c and $1. Trial bottle free. Sold by J. H. Swan.

A Clock of 1780.

An interesting specimen of a long clock, made in 1780, is owned by a gentleman at Lutterworth, England. It has an oval face, a hand which points to the days of the week, completing the round in seven days. One which shows the true dead beat, and another which points to the chimes and quarters.

On the upper part of the clock is a small orchestra, which includes a flute, a cello, and two violins, and a boy and girl in addition to three singers. The hours and the quarters are struck and over three hours a tune is played "three times over either on the bells alone, the lyric or on both together," while the three figures beat time and the boy and girl dance to the music.

A Bad Boy in Colonial Days.

A notebook of a justice of the peace in Connecticut, in the year 1760, specifies the behavior of a certain small meeting house boy as follows:

"A rude and idle behavior in the meeting house such as smiling and laughing and intinseling others to the same evil.

Such a laughing or smiling and pulling the hair of his neighbor benon simkin in the time of public worship.

Such as throwing Sister Pentecost Perkins on the ice it being Saboth Day or Lord's Day between the meeting house and his place of abode."—Bibles, "Side Glimpes."

Kills a Murderer

A merciless murderer is appendicitis with many victims, but Dr. King's New Life Pills kill it by prevention. They gently stimulate stomach, liver and bowels, preventing that clogging that invites appendicitis, curing constipation, headache, biliousness, chills. 25c at J. H. Swan's.

For Pantry Shelves.

The shelves in the pantry often mean a great deal of scrubbing. This need not be so if the shelves are covered with white oilcloth, such as is used for tables. Cut the oilcloth in long strips about three inches wider than the shelves. Make flour paste, and with it stick the oilcloth on the shelves, covering the front edge and pasting it underneath, and letting the oilcloth come up about an inch against the wall at the back. Shelves covered with oilcloth will keep tidy for years, and only need wiping over with a cloth and warm water to clean them.

LORIMER HOLDS SEAT STARTS ON LONG TRIP

SENATE REJECTS BEVERIDGE
RESOLUTION DECLARING VA-CANT POSITION HE WON.

ENDS LONG TOGA BATTLE

Speeches Pro and Con by Nearly a Score of Senators—Cullom's Defense of Himself and His State and Hard Work of the Lobby.

Washington.—Senator William Lorimer of Illinois was vindicated by the senate of the United States Wednesday, when by a vote of 46 to 40 the resolution which was introduced by Senator Beveridge declaring that Mr. Lorimer was not duly and legally elected to a seat in the senate of the United States by the legislature of Illinois was defeated. Mr. Lorimer was not present when the roll was called.

For Senator Lorimer.

Bacon, Ga. Martin, W. Va.
Beveridge, Ind. Money, Miss.
Borah, Idaho. Nelson, Minn.
Bristow, Kans. Newlands, Nev.
Brown, Neb. Overman, N. C.
Burke, Neb. Owen, Okla.

Jones, Wash. Watson, W. Va.
La Follette, Wis. Young, Iowa.

Against Senator Lorimer.

Absent—Aldrich, Frazier and Terrell.
Senator Lorimer did not vote because of his interest in the case. Speeches had been made for or against the accused man during the months of January and February by William Lorimer.

Senators Bailey, Beveridge, Borah, Bristow, Brown, Burrows, Cullom, Cummins, Davis, Fletcher, Gallinger, Gamble, Heyburn, Johnson, Jones, Owen, Paynter, Root and by Mr. Lorimer himself. Mr. Cullom also spoke, but was noncommittal as to his colleague. He defended himself and the state of Illinois.

Efforts were made daily by friends and foes of Mr. Lorimer to influence the votes of the senators for or against him, and during the last two weeks Mr. Cullom received an avalanche of letters and telegrams so large it was feared his health would break under it.

The Lorimer fight has been one of the most sensational in the history of the upper house. When the committee on privileges and elections returned a report declaring that no evidences of bribery having influenced the legislators in the election of Mr. Lorimer had been found, it was considered that he was amply vindicated and that his senate seat was secure.

This report was prepared by a subcommittee and was the outcome of an exhaustive investigation both at Washington and Chicago, in which the charges of bribery at Springfield were thoroughly gone into.

ROOSEVELT TO TOUR THE SOUTH AND SOUTHWEST.

Will Participate in Many Important Events During the Next Two Months.

New York.—Former President Roosevelt left Wednesday on a two months' tour of the south and southwest. A $10,000 dinner, a reunion of the Rough Riders, a day spent in presiding over ceremonies to be held in the town of Roosevelt, Ariz., to mark the opening of the Roosevelt dam, one of the greatest engineering feats in the west, and long hunting and fishing trips in and about the Rockies are some of the things which will enliven the peregrinations of the former president.

In Birmingham, he will address a Child Labor commission. New Orleans will entertain the ex-Rough Rider with a $10,000 banquet given under the auspices of the Commercial Club of Louisiana. The annual convention of "Cattle Raisers," one of the most powerful organizations in the state of Texas, will then be addressed by the Colonel at San Antonio. The next stop in the itinerary will be Albuquerque, N. M., where the ex-Rough Rider will spend two days among his old friends of the saddle. From there he goes to Grand Canyon, Ariz., where a short address will be delivered. Then on to Phoenix for the opening of the Roosevelt dam.

In Los Angeles, Colonel Roosevelt will speak at the invitation of Governor Johnson of that state.

San Francisco, the termination of his trans-continental trip will receive some ten days of his time. Here he will divide his time between the University of California, at Berkeley, where he will deliver the Earl lectures, six in number, and his headquarters in the city where he will receive visitors from the Pacific slope.

No definite arrangements, other than a personal promise to be present at the opening of the new Y. M. C. A. building at Reno, have been made, though it is probable that he will visit friends in Oregon and Nevada for an intermediate period, after which he will visit Seattle and Spokane. No speeches to be delivered in those states are yet announced; nor is the length of his stay. At the conclusion of his visit he will probably go to some place in Idaho, thence to Sand Point, Montana, and home through the north and middle west.

BROWN WINS OVER WOLGAST

New York Boy Has Champion Nearly Out in Second Round of Gotham Bout.

New York.—Before a remarkable assemblage, 20 per cent. of whom were men noted in American life, and who had paid more than $25,000 to see the contest, "Knockout" Brown nearly made himself the lightweight champion of the world in the ring at the National Sporting club Friday night.

Wolgast, the champion, held his title by the sheer simplicity of clinging to Brown.

All the way Brown carried the fight to the champion and in every respect he repeated his Philadelphia achievement. He won in ten rounds over the champion as thoroughly as he had in six rounds.

EXTRA SESSION CALL

PRESIDENT TAFT ISSUES PROCLAMATION CONVENING CONGRESS ON APRIL 4.

TO ACT ON RECIPROCITY

Bailey Tenders Resignation, Then Withdraws It—Tariff Board Bill and Resolution Admitting New Mexico to Statehood Defeated.

Washington.—Ninety minutes after the Sixty-first congress ended Saturday President Taft called the Sixty-second to meet in extraordinary session on April 4.

The proclamation states the purpose of calling the extra session is to get action on reciprocity. It calls attention to the fact that the house passed the McCall bill, but that the senate had done nothing. In support of his demand, the president cites the fact that the agreement with Canada forces him to do all in his power to get legislation carrying out that agreement enacted.

It was at the request of the Democrats that President Taft fixed the date of the extra session on April 4.

Just before the closing hour of the Sixty-first congress Senator Bailey telegraphed his resignation to Governor Colquhoun of Texas. The immediate cause of his action was disgust over the attitude of his Democratic colleagues in voicing support of the initiative, referendum and recall by voting to accept the constitution of the prospective state of Arizona. Subsequently he withdrew his resignation.

Out of the smoke of the closing battle emerge these results of larger interest:

Positive Results—Provision of $3,000,000 for the fortification of the Panama canal.

Provision for two new battleships.

Recodification of the judicial code—regarded as most important for the amelioration of the law's delays.

Creation of forest preserves in the southern Appalachian and White mountains.

Providing for the construction of embassy legation buildings abroad.

Requiring the inspection of locomotive boilers.

Creating Robert E. Peary a rear admiral on the retired list of the navy and formally voting thanks of congress to him.

Creating a commission of five senators and five representatives to investigate conditions in Alaska.

Negative Results—Failure of the Canadian reciprocity agreement and consequent certainty of an extra session.

Failure of permanent tariff board bill, which passed the senate, but was killed by a filibuster in the house.

Failure of the resolution to admit to statehood Arizona and New Mexico killed by a filibuster in the senate.

Failure of the proposal to increase the rate of postage on the advertising sections of the large magazines; but a commission provided for to investigate the subject.

Failure of the resolution providing for the direct election of United States senators.

Failure of the general age pension bill.

Failure to act on Ballinger-Pinchot investigation reports.

House Committee Exonerates Officials of Philippines From Charges of Irregularity.

Washington.—Complete exoneration of the officers of the Philippine government of charges of irregularities or improprieties in connection with the administration, sale or lease of lands in the islands is combined with pointed criticisms of the inadequacy of the laws to prevent monopolies in what are known as the friar lands in both the majority and minority reports of the house committee on insular affairs submitted to the house Friday.

The charge made on the floor of the house a year ago by Representative Martin of Colorado that the so-called sugar trust had acquired 56,000 acres of friar lands led to an investigation of the entire question of the administration of public as well as friar lands.

As to the acquisition of E. L. Poole of 56,000 acres of the friar lands on behalf of Horace Havemeyer, Charles J. Welch and Charles H. Senn, both reports declare the public officials involved were not culpable, being guided by the best available interpretations of the law.

U. S. FIGHTS COMBINE

DISTRICT ATTORNEY FILES SUIT AGAINST GENERAL ELECTRIC.

Involves Patent-Law Test—Suit Intended to Break Up Incandescent Lamp Monopoly.

Washington.—Suit was filed in the federal court at Cleveland Friday by the government against the General Electric company and 34 other concerns named as members of the electrical trust and charged with restraint of trade and hurtful monopoly.

Officials of the department of justice declare that their investigations of the combination have disclosed a situation which overshadows any other anti-trust prosecution the government has ever undertaken, not excepting the case against the Standard Oil company. The action against the General Electric company is more or less in the nature of a test case, for the courts will be called on to decide how far the patent laws of the United States may be construed to protect monopolies.

Investigations of the department have disclosed that the electrical business of the country appears to be divided into seventeen or more divisions or sections, each comprising some particular branch, and the contention is that it is controlled by the complete organization of these divisions.

Although it was the announced intention of Attorney General Wickham not to begin any more anti-trust suits until the Standard Oil and the American Tobacco cases have been adjudicated in the United States Supreme court, the questions relating to patent law are such as to bring the case into an entirely different class.

Some of the features in the action are substantially parallel to the situation in the pending prosecution against the so-called bath tub trust, in which the defense has been made that the patent laws of the United States authorized the control of which the government complains.

The best talent in the department of justice has been engaged on the electrical case.

The Point of View.
This is a true story. A certain belle was present at a certain Chopin recital. During the "Marche Funebre," her eyes glistened and her whole attitude of rapt attention was as if the music had entranced her very soul. Her whole face was expressive of admiration and intense interest. When the pianist had finished, the escort of Miss "Belle" turned to her and said: "How beautiful!" To which she replied: "Yes, indeed, doesn't it fit her exquisitely in the back? How much do you suppose it cost in Paris?"

UNCOVER TAFT PLOT

THREE MEN ARE CHARGED WITH CONSPIRACY TO SLAY PRESIDENT.

ALLEGED TO BE ANARCHISTS

Police Claim They Overheard Prisoners Making Plans to Kill Chief Executive, Spokane Mayor and Others.

Spokane, Wash.—In the arrest of three men here Monday the police believe they have uncovered a plot of anarchists, not only to assassinate Mayor N. S. Pratt of Spokane, but President Taft and one or two others.

The men are also held on the charge of being implicated in the murder of Chief of Police Sullivan several months ago. The men are Stuart Moffett, John Steele and Andrew Johnson.

The police claim to have overheard a plot to kill Mayor Pratt on the eve of the municipal election, and to kill President Taft when he leaves the White House for his summer vacation.

Moffett, the police say, was instigator of the Haymarket riots; Steele is an alleged anarchist leader, and Johnson is said to be the financial agent for the local band.

The suspects lived in a small room in the San Francisco hotel. Secret agents of the police have been in an adjoining room for several weeks past and had decided not to make the arrest until after Tuesday's election.

The overheard of a conversation Sunday night, however, in which the assassination of Mayor Pratt was set for election eve or the day of election, caused the police to make the arrests. The three men have been under surveillance for a long time.

The police have taken verbatim reports of the conversations held by the prisoners by having stenographers in adjoining rooms. The hotel is a cheaply built house and the walls are thin.

Moffett is said to have thrice visited the mayor's house only to find an armed guard. Mr. Pratt has been warned many times of a violent death at the same hands which killed Chief of Police Sullivan.

"We will get Taft when he leaves the White House for his vacation," is the statement Captain of Detectives Burns says he overheard Moffett make. Detective Burns also has verbatim statements in which Steele was talking of his maneuvers after killing the police chief.

From a geological standpoint this has happened in comparatively recent times. It has all been done since the glacial period. This brings it into the present period and makes the action new. In fact, it is positively known to be now going on.

At Rye Beach, N. H., there is a shelving beach which proves positively that there has been a much greater decline in what would appear to be a comparatively short time. When the tide runs unusually low at Rye Beach there appears from the bottom of the sea what looks like a great forest which has been cut over with the stumps of the old trees remaining. One who makes so bold as to follow the retreating waves finds that this is, in fact, a forest of old tree stumps still remaining intact on the floor of the ocean.

It has been found from Maine to Florida that at a level of from ten to twenty feet down there was originally the bed of a forest. Stumps of great trees still in a reasonable state of preservation are found at these depths.

The original mouth of the Hudson river is now 200 miles out to sea. The ships follow its old channel in leaving port even now. Geologically it is proven that New York cannot endure. In the ages that are to come there will be an aquatic Pompeii out from the coast and the port of New York will be somewhere up toward West Point. Likewise will Boston be submerged. Baltimore will disappear about the same time, and great portions of Washington, the nation's capital will have kept pace with them.

The great Mississippi is bringing down deposits to raise its delta and counterbalance the decline. But man is fencing off these waters and preventing the overflow of the lands surrounding, and the river will gradually become a dyked stream above the house-tops of the people on the farms and in cities. So low is New Orleans that it will be one of the first of the cities to sink below the sea level and be a municipality high walled against the enemy, the sea. Galveston has already felt the encroachment of the waters and been forced to build itself a sea wall, and the decline of the land level may have played no small part in the devastation of the waters during the Galveston flood.

OUR COASTAL CITIES

Greedy Atlantic Said to Be Slowly Engulfing Them.

Government Geologist Declares That In Time Coast Cities From Boston to New Orleans Will Be Under Water.

Boston.—The time will come when that coast line of the United States which boasts such cities as New York, Boston, Baltimore, Washington and Galveston will be 300 miles out to sea and those cities will have been submerged. The whole Atlantic coast is slowly sinking into the ocean. So rapid is the sinking that evidences of it and measurements of it within the last decade are now to be had. That the rate of the sinking is being accelerated, and that it may be much faster in the future than it has been in the past is the claim made by C. A. Davis, government geologist, who has of late been piling up masses of evidence in this connection.

He holds that there is no need on the part of the residents of the coast cities to scramble to the house-tops today or tomorrow. But, as sure as the geologic tendencies which have gone on unchanged for hundreds of thousands of years and are now at work continue, the people of the nation's great eastern cities will be gradually pulled beneath the water level.

Geologists have long recognized the fact that the Atlantic coast line was once much farther out than it is now. There is a line from 100 to 300 miles off the present coast at which the water suddenly gets much deeper. Out to that distance the water is generally some 300 feet deep. Then it plunges suddenly and becomes ten times as far to the ocean bottom. The men of the coast survey have traced this line throughout the length of our coast line and find it similar all along. The geologists say that the continent once reached out this far and that here was the coast line. But a gradual decline through the ages has caused that line to retreat until now it is where we know it.

From a geological standpoint this has happened in comparatively recent times. It has all been done since the glacial period. This brings it into the present period and makes the action new. In fact, it is positively known to be now going on.

A Generous Gift

Professor Munyon has just issued a most beautiful, useful and complete almanac. It contains not only all the scientific information concerning the moon's phases, in all the latitudes, but has illustrated articles on how to read character by phrenology, palmistry and birth month. It also tells all about card reading, birth stones and their meaning, and gives the interpretation of dreams. It teaches beauty culture, manicuring, gives weights and measures and antidotes for poison. In fact, it is a Magazine Almanac, that not only gives valuable information, but will afford much amusement for every member of the family, especially for parties and evening entertainments. Farmers and people in the rural districts will find this Almanac almost invaluable.

It will be sent to anyone absolutely free on application to the Munyon Remedy Company, Philadelphia, Pa.

Why pay your hard earned money for a "cheap" trashy machine when you can buy a reliable DE LAVAL upon such liberal terms that

It will more than earn its cost while you are paying for it.

When you buy a DE LAVAL you have positive assurance that your machine will be good for at least twenty years of service, during which time it will save every possible dollar for you and earn its original cost over and over again.

If you purchase the so-called "cheap" separator you must pay cash in advance and then take the chance of the machine becoming worthless after a year or two of use, to say nothing of the cream it will waste while it does last,—all of which means that you have virtually thrown away the money invested in the cheap separator and wasted your time, labor and product in the bargain.

The DE LAVAL separator pays for itself. It runs easier, skims cleaner and lasts longer than any other cream separator.

Be sure to see the local DE LAVAL agent and try a DE LAVAL before you buy any cream separator.
